

Profile of a Graduate of the study programme Finance, Banking and Investment

In general, the graduate of the study program:

- has knowledge of essential facts, concepts, principles and theories related to the functioning of the national economy,
- can apply them to the proposed solutions and decisions made by entities, thus, demonstrating comprehension of the relationships and impacts of alternative decisions when submitting proposals and decision-making,
- is able to apply appropriate theories, practical procedures and tools for proposing and implementing decisions made by management bodies.

The graduate of the study program Finance, Banking and Investment acquires knowledge and skills to:

- specify and propose sets of measures for decision-making processes of management bodies,
- work with the instruments of economic, social and financial policy used by management bodies for decision-making,
- apply knowledge acquired in financial markets, banking, accounting and tax counselling to deal creatively with the tasks related to financial markets and financial management of the business sphere;
- continue studies at 2nd level in the study program Finance, Banking and Investment,
- systematise and analyse current problems in the field of finance applying basic knowledge of the legislative environment, methods and techniques of analysis used to solve general problems as well as methods of management applicable to finance at the enterprise level,
- apply basic methods and techniques of project writing and management, basic methods of analysis and research, and statistical methods,
- communicate effectively in at least one foreign language, with a working knowledge of another foreign language.