

Profile of a Graduate of the study program Economics and Management of Public Administration

The study program builds on the knowledge and skills acquired in the bachelor's degree in the form of expanding the theoretical basis and by deepening practical skills.

Characteristics of the graduate of the study program and knowledge he will acquire:

- acquire an integrated system of knowledge of economic sciences, administrative science, legal and socio-political sciences,
- masters the methods and techniques of national and regional analyses, the creation of programs and projects, the main methods of regional and spatial analysis and higher-level research and statistical methods,
- masters the methods of designing and practical implementation of programs of economic and social development of regions, cities, and municipalities,
- can solve practical problems in the competence of public administration in its material and territorial competence,
- acquire knowledge of essential facts, principles and theories related to the functioning of public administration, especially territorial self-government and in relation to regional and urban development policy,
- gain a quality overview of the economy, management, and finances of local government,
- acquire knowledge of theoretical approaches and practical implementation of strategic, spatial, and territorial planning,
- can use the acquired knowledge and skills to select appropriate instruments of economic and social policy and its financing,
- speaks at least one foreign language very well and has a basic knowledge of another foreign language,
- in the case of the culture management profile, a graduate masters the basic tools of management and marketing of culture and cultural policy from the perspective of public administration and cultural institutions.

Profile and expected application of a graduate:

- has acquired basic knowledge of economic theories and policies, regional economics and politics, theories of management and organisation of public administration and public sector, project management, program management and financing, public finance, constitutional and administrative law, political science and social sciences, methods of analysis and management of economic and social processes,
- can independently solve interdisciplinary problems that are characteristic for the performance of public administration on all its levels,

- can specify, suggest, and implement program solutions and manage the individual steps of creating and implementing programs,
- can identify key issues related to the objectives of European regional policy, including the application of adequate tools for its implementation,
- Graduates of the culture management profile can work in institutions that operate in the cultural-enlightenment and cultural-educational areas, in tourism and in the field of artistic and media culture.

The graduate of the study field can work in a leading position of central, regional, and local institutions of public administration, public and non-profit sector, in cultural institutions.